Attention: To Whom It May Concern:

Subject: Addendum No. 1 to JPL RFP No. JD-2673-584730

This addendum is to notify you of any new questions that have been submitted to JPL in relation to the subject RFP, with JPL's answers, as follows:

- Q1. Is this RFP to gather instruments that are available for use on future missions to support a catalog development?*
- A1. No. The objective of this RFP is to collect actual instrument cost and related technical data.
- Q2. Will there be an element of cost analysis, cost research as part of it? If so, what kind of analysis/research will be needed? If not, what kind of information are you looking for?*
- A2. No. There will be no cost analysis/research. See the answer to Question No. 1. However, JPL anticipates a follow-on Phase 2 task from NASA that will focus on cost model development, analysis, and validation.
- Q3. The cost elements breakdown from requests a breakdown of direct, overhead, G&A and fee. Is JPL amenable to labor rates based on a GSA schedule such as MOBIS? These rates would be inclusive of labor overhead, G&A and fee, without a breakdown based on actual direct labor costs.*
- A3. RFP Attachment A-19 is hereby deleted; it was included by mistake. You are to follow the Cost Instruments in proposing a "total price for each item listed in Article 2 of the Specimen Contract."
- Q4. Will cost and/or technical data for instruments listed in the Contract-Required Instrument List (Exhibit II) which were produced by or for NASA be provided by NASA for use in this project?*
- A4. No. NASA/JPL will coordinate with the leading organizations for those projects about this data collection task. The contractor will collect the cost/technical data from them and their Aerospace manufacturers.
- Q5. Will data which has been independently collected by the contractor (either pre-existing data on Contract-Required instruments or any data on Contract-Optional instruments) be exempted from the requirement (Article 3.0, paragraph 2.0) to remove all JPL data from Contractor-owned computers when no longer used for this contract?*
- A5. Yes, for any data that has been collected prior to/outside of this effort/contract. Any data collected under this effort is not exempt.

Q6. Is it anticipated that the period of performance on this contract will extend beyond the Final Oral Briefing in September 2004?

A6. No. JPL anticipates completing this data collection task by the end of this fiscal year.

The RFP due date is not changed by this addendum.

In accordance with the RFP's General Instructions, you must indicate receipt of any and all addendums on Attachment A-1 that is to be sent with your proposal.

Thank you for your interest in this matter.

Very truly yours,

John T. Davis
